Nawkaw Corporation has Launched a New, User-Friendly Web Site, Offering Online Product Specs and Downloadable Test Results

Nawkaw Corporation has launched a new web site. They have given architects and other construction specifiers the ability to download spec sheets, warranty information, and test data directly to their office, or to their laptop while out in the field.

Watkinsville, GA (PRWEB) August 2, 2006 -- Nawkaw Corporation's previous web site has been updated, with a more contemporary feel, including comfortable navigation and simplified access to information that would have been previously sent by mail. The photo galleries are better organized, and the site now features detailed product and service information. Color palettes have been added in an Interactive Photo Gallery, giving the user color options for masonry, mortar, and precast. Additional interactive galleries are still being developed that will include textures, multiple surfaces, and special application techniques.

The new site also includes a navigational map, detailing individual locations. Nawkaw Regional Managers are listed, with appropriate contact information for all national and international offices. Updated features also include a quote request form, where clients can attach photo files to the submitted project. Potential employees can also access the online Employment Page. New video/presentations for the Media Page are also being developed and will be added later this year.

For additional information please contact Nawkaw's Corporate Office.
